DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 7-9, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Goodwin et al. (US 2002/0059131).

Goodwin et al. teach a system and method for trading and originating financial products using a computer network, comprising:

As per claims 7, 20 and 21,

- displaying a plurality of conditions corresponding to the product to the customer, wherein the conditions are customer selectable ([0054]; [0055]; [0060]; [0068]; [0071]);
- receiving a set of conditions selected by the customer ([0071]; [0072]);
- storing the set of conditions in a memory ([0071]; [0072]; [0094]);
- monitoring the memory to determine whether the conditions can be met, wherein when the conditions are met, the customer may be contacted and offered the product for sale ([0071]; [0072]; [0094]; [0132]);
- provided the conditions are met, proactively establishing a telephonic connection with the customer ([0147]; [0140]; [0085]; [0071]; [0072]; [0059]).

As per claim 8, Goodwin et al. teach said system and method wherein the order is placed on-line ([0094]; [0095]).

As per claim 9, Goodwin et al. teach said system and method wherein the order is placed via a B2B exchange or B2B enterprise resource planning ([0099]; [0100]).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6, 10-19 and 22-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goodwin et al. in view Cerami et al. (US 2002/0087680).

Goodwin et al. teach said system and method for trading and originating financial products using a computer network, comprising:

As per claims 1, 5, 10, 14, 16 and 22,

- receiving an order placed by a customer ([0054]; [0055]; [0060]; [0068]; [0071]; [0072]; [0094] through [0095]);

- initiating a workflow process to handle the order ([0054]; [0055]; [0060]; [0068]; [0071]; [0072]; [0094] through [0095]);

- proactively establishing a telephonic connection with the customer ([0147]).

Goodwin et al. do not teach notifying a call center agent if a problem occurs during the processing of the order, which enables the call center agent to proactively contact the customer.

Cerami et al. teach a system and method for proactive service request management and measurement, comprising:

- monitoring the workflow process to detect any problems ([0042] through [0048]; [0102]);
- notifying a call center agent if a problem occurs during the processing of the order which enables the call center agent to proactively contact the customer ([0042] through [0048]; [0102]).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Goodwin et al. to include notifying a call center agent if a problem occurs during the processing of the order which enables the call center agent to proactively contact the customer, because it would allow to decrease cost associated with a repair process, and increase customer service level, as specifically taught by Cerame et al. ([005]; [0006]), thereby make it more attractive to the customers.

As per claims 2, 11, 17 and 23, Cerami et al. teach said system and method, further comprising the step of automatically fixing the problem and informing the customer of the problem and the solution before being contacted by the customer ([0007]; [0042] through [0048]; [0088]; [0098]; [0100]; [0114]).

As per claims 3, 12, 18 and 24, Cerami et al. teach said system and method, further comprising the step researching the problem, explaining the problem to the customer, and proposing a solution to the customer before being contacted by the customer ([0007]; [0042] through [0048]; [0114]; [0119]).

Art Unit: 3629

As per claims 4, 13, 19, 25, Cerami et al. teach said system and method, further comprising the step of establishing a collaboration session between representatives of the customer and the seller to resolve the problem ([0046]; [0056]).

As per claims 6 and 15, Goodwin et al. teach said system and method wherein the order is placed via a B2B exchange or B2B enterprise resource planning ([0099] through [0100]).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 06/11/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that Goodwin et al. fail to show a method step comprising proactively establishing a telephonic connection with a customer, examiner points out that Goodwin et al. does, in fact, disclose this feature (See: [0147] and discussion above).

In response to applicant's argument that Goodwin et al. fail to disclose a method step comprising proactively presenting the financial product information, examiner points out that Goodwin et al. specifically teach this feature (See: [0072] and discussion above).

In response to applicant's argument that Cerami et al. fail to disclose a method step comprising proactively establishing connection with a customer in response to a problem, examiner points out that Cerami et al. explicitly teach this feature (See: [0072] and discussion above).

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure (see form PTO-892).
